Free-spirited university student Aoife O'Shaughnessy has a problem: she's still a virgin. But that's okay, she's got a plan. She's not looking for love, or romance, or happily ever after. Just one hot night with a guy who won't want to cuddle in the morning. And preferably someone who doesn't play for her big brother's rugby team. Especially not a certain someone who plays for Dublin Rugby. Eoin McGrath, Dublin Rugby's hot new star, is basking in the spoils of his new-found success ... including all the girls that come with it. But when he hears his childhood friend Aoife's plan to lose her virginity, he's got a better idea: what if he punches her v-card instead? It all makes perfect sense. Until one night of passion leads to a surprise pregnancy, and Eoin and Aoife must confront their feelings for one another, while dealing with a future neither of them ever saw coming. They'll both have to grow up fast, but together, they learn they can do anything. Even something as crazy as raising a kid.
