

Country of the Heart: An Australian Indigenous Homeland

|                          |   |
|--------------------------|---|
| Language          | English                                   |
| Pages:            | 176                                       |
| Author:           | Deborah Bird Rose                         |
| ISBN13:           | 9780855757762                             |
| ISBN10:           | 0855757760                                |
| Published:        | June 1st 2011 by Aboriginal Studies Press |
| Goodreads Rating: | 4.50                                      |
| Genre:            | Uncategorized                             |

Country of the Heart: An Australian Indigenous Homeland.pdf

Country of the Heart: An Australian Indigenous Homeland.epub

An introduction to the connections between Aboriginal people and the land that has sustained and nurtured them for generations, this thorough photographic chronicle explores the lives of the MakMak clan women. Delving into the heart of Australia—its people, animals, plants, ancestors, and seasons—this account reveals the intimate relationships between this beautiful country’s land and inhabitants. Told through the voices of indigenous academic Linda Ford and her family—the traditional custodians of Wagait country—this story conveys the challenges the MakMak continue to face in order to maintain the health of ‘country’ as it provides insights into contemporary indigenous culture.