In a world where magic, science and religion are locked in constant war with each other it is vital to know which side you are on. However for Will - a scientific genius born in a magical empire, Abi - a witch in a land of saints and Eunice - a prophetess in a land of science - that is hardly an option. But not belonging is the least of their problems, what with a dark plan afoot to destroy the very fundamental substance of the world itself, and no one but those three brave enough (or stupid enough) to try and stop it.
