Sarah Smith sought a better life for herself in the Montana town of Grantsville by becoming a mail order bride. When there's an expected death on the journey there, she thinks about turning back, but decides to go ahead with her plan. When she meets her intended groom, Jon, she's not only taken with his looks and kindness, but also his neighbor and friend, Shaun Nolan. When both men save her life, it soon becomes apparent they're all attracted to each other. They embark on an intimate relationship and live a lifestyle that has everyone wondering what's going on at the homestead. Can their love withstand the bias and hatred that emerges when the townsfolk learn of her unmarried status and the fact that she's clearly taken both men as her lovers? Or will love conquer all?
